

Spiral Galaxy NGC 2841

A majestic disk of stars and dust lanes are on display in this view of the spiral galaxy NGC 2841. A bright cusp of starlight marks the galaxy's center. Spiraling outward are dust lanes silhouetted against the population of whitish middle-aged stars. Much younger blue stars trace the spiral arms.

Hubble Space Telescope – Wide Field Camera 3

NASA, ESA, and the Hubble Heritage Team (STScI/AURA)-ESA/Hubble Collaboration. Acknowledgment: M. Crockett and S. Kaviraj (Oxford University, UK), R. O'Connell (University of Virginia), B. Whitmore (STScI), and the WFC3 SOC.